

FRIENDS' FOOTNOTES

President's Notes:

Greetings to all members of Friends of the Library. I do hope all of you had a wonderful 4th of July and celebrated our amazing country! Now it's time to get serious about summer, so says the calendar!

Thanks go out to everyone who helped make another book sale a success and to Carol Trimble and Nancy Hubbs for helping make this all happen. The sign up sheets are out at the library for our Labor Day book sale, so don't be shy, get your name in soon for the time that works best for you.

Looking forward to our July 23rd meeting at 1:00pm in the Activity Room, Debbie Tametti has arranged to have a local author, Marsha Ward, speak about her latest book. She writes historical fiction set in 19th century America. Hope to see all of you there to enjoy this speaker. Remember, guests are always welcome! Take care and see you all soon.

Secretary's Report:

Members and friends who were at the annual June potluck, once again enjoyed a sampling of the delicious food served up by some of the great cooks in our community. Thank you to Jean Larson and her crew for setting up and decorating the tables with some pretty pots of roses.

Many thanks to Carol Trimble who volunteered to chair both the Independence Day book sale and Labor Day weekend book sale. There was no new or old business to discuss but Sue Hedman reminded everyone that there were still openings to help with set up, selling and clean up of the Independence Day book sale.

Debbie Tamietti advised the guest speaker for the July 23rd Friends' meeting is author, Marsha Ward who writes about America in the 19th century.

As I am writing this after our book sale over the Independence Day weekend, I just wanted to share with our members and anyone that helped with the work involved, the total receipts for the book sale was $838.00.
